Fleeing suspect rams police cruiser

A police officer was slightly injured after a fleeing suspect rammed his vehicle New Year's Day, according to a police arrest report.

The pursuit began at about 12:30 p.m. when officers responded to a call that stolen license plates were observed on a 1987 Pontiac Trans Am in West Sacramento. An officer saw the vehicle being driven near the scene of the report, and attempted to pull it over. The suspect fled "at a high rate of speed towards the Reed/I-80 intersection, at one point spinning the car "180 degrees" and intentionally ramming a squad car.

The suspect then attempted to flee on foot, according to the report, but was caught.

The vehicle was reported as stolen from Sacramento and suspect William Soto, a 21-year old with no permanent address, was arrested.

Gateway project seeks approval of its design

By Steve Marschke

Developers of a planned 76 acre, 333-home residential complex near the barge canal in Southport have agreed to adhere to requirements of the Southport Framework Plan, even though that plan has not yet been approved.

The Southport Framework Plan, commissioned by city officials to master-plan the 7,000 largely-undeveloped acres in the south half of West Sacramento, is characterized by a wide, "loop" arterial road servicing "villages" with pedestrian pathways.

The 76-acre parcel, called Southport Gateway, is owned by Ryder Allfam Properties of Walnut Creek and is to be developed by Granite/Power Development of Sacramento. The two firms are seeking approval of a subdivision map by the city planning commission on Jan. 19, in order to lock in certain conditions.

"They want to subdivide the land in order to lock into the regulations in effect when the application was completed six months ago," said Terry Roberts, a planner in the city community development department. If the subdivision is approved, the development won't be held to some future city requirements, such as traffic impact fees which may be levied to help pay for new roads.

"One would have thought we'd have a traffic impact fee in place by now, but we don't have a fee schedule yet," said Roberts.

Southport Gateway is an irregular piece of land reaching southeast from the Jefferson Blvd./South River Road intersection. One "finger" of the property reaches to the Sacramento River.

South River Road forms part of the future, looping "beltway" which will service Southport, and forms a northern border with the Gateway project.

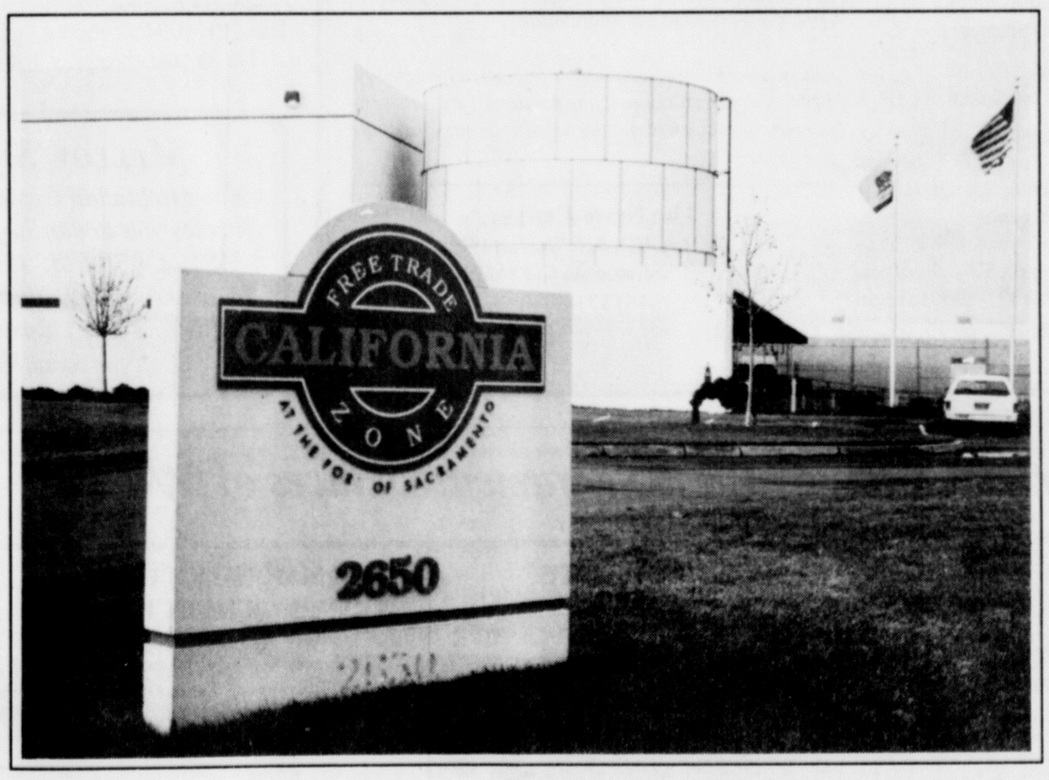
A return to the routine

The holidays were over when this picture was snapped at about 5 p.m. Tuesday, but they still had their residue, as this greetings banner from the City of West Sacramento at city hall shows. City offices occupy the second floor of this building at 2101 Stone Blvd.; the Port of Sacramento, which owns the building, occupies the third floor.

GATT won't hurt Free Trade Zone, manager says



By Steve Marschke

The California Free Trade Zone -- a federally authorized warehousing center near the Port of Sacramento at 2650 Industrial Blvd. in West Sacramento -- depends on high tariffs to keep it alive. But General Manager Sam Eng said last month that the new rounds of tariff-lowering world trade talks won't mean disaster for the facility.

The trade zone is privately administered under license from the Port of Sacramento, which is granted rights to a free trade zone by the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. Goods stored at the facility are exempt from duties that they might normally incur as they enter or leave the country.

So the 133,000 square foot California Free Trade Zone tends to handle goods that are subject to at least four percent tariff rates -- "above five percent, we really begin to shine," said Eng. Companies now using the zone to defer or sidestep duties include a "preponderance of high-tech industries like Hewlett Packard," he said.

The new GATT treaty and NAFTA may lower some tariff rates.

"The effect will be minimal if at all," said Eng. "On selected items, (tariffs) are phased out over ten years. We will just substitute some industries for others."

The facility, which occupies 8.3 acres, will simply continue marketing itself to find industries which can gain from the use of a free trade zone, said Eng. In the future, that will probably include less of the high-tech industries now frequenting the California Free Trade Zone.

Recycling opportunities:

This weekend is your chance to recycle your cut Christmas tree

Saturday, January 7, and Sunday, January 8 are the dates for this year's city-sponsored Christmas tree recycling program. Residents can bring their tree on these days to the Riverside Tree Farm at 1320 Linden Road between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. on each day. Crews will be on hand to grind the tree into mulch for use at city parks. The chips will also be available to residents (please bring your own container for hauling). This free service is offered by the city's recycling division. The goal of the program is to divert as many trees as possible from the landfill. Sorry, flocked trees will not be accepted.

Outdated phone books can be turned in at Raley's store

Pacific Bell has begun distributing the new 1995 phone books, and City of West Sacramento officials are urging residents to consider recycling their old ones.

Outdated phone books may be taken to the customer service podium or the camera department at Raley's supermarket on West Capitol Ave. west of Jefferson Blvd. Customers are asked not to place the books in the recycling bins located outside the store.

Old phone books will be taken to Fiberwood, a Sacramento-based fiber mill that will shred them and turn them into insulation, mulch and other products.

City prepares new agreement with MacBlo

■ Paper plant's impact on river still to be debated, but council will discuss related development issues at next week's meeting

By Steve Marschke

Proponents of the billion-dollar newspaper recycling plant planned for West Sacramento's Southport Industrial Park are still awaiting results of sewage treatment studies. But city council members are set to discuss and begin ratifying a development agreement with the plant's backers on Jan. 11.

The development agreement will generally re-hash issues brought up during the last two years in the form of conditional use permits for the paper plant. But instead of simply extending permits, which have a lifespan of only a year, city officials expect to give the plant a long-term go-ahead through a development agreement this time.

"The major terms would be the adoption of all the previous

'Cheaper!' set for hearing Wednesday

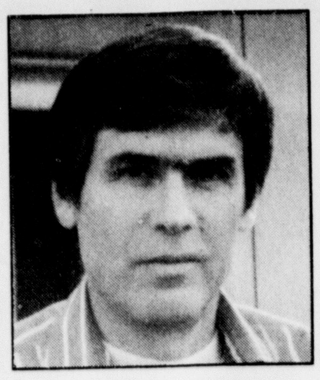
The City Council is slated to hear an appeal of the West Sacramento Planning Commission's decision to approve a new "Cheaper!" store in Southport at its meeting next Wednesday, Jan. 18.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the council's chambers at 2101 Stone Blvd.

The planning commission's decision was appealed independently by council members Wes Beers and Greg Potnick, and by members of the Southport Homeowners Association.

Little rituals everyone has -- like how to take a shower

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The other day, I was leisurely taking my morning shower when it suddenly dawned on me that I have been taking showers the exact same way for almost forty years. More specifically, I stroll into the bathroom, take off the shirt I'm wearing, and carefully spread it out on the floor as a mat. Then, after I've stepped out of the rest of my clothes, I make sure the water is as hot as I can stand it and that the shower nozzle is aimed at the exact angle required to assure that no sensitive area of my body comes into contact with any of the cold water which tends to fly around at the outer edges of the spray on chilly mornings.

Once thoroughly wet, I begin the complicated scrubbing process--which always starts with my hair. As I make my way downwards, I attack from left to right and deliberately leave everything I find in the center to the very last. I work without the aid of a washcloth--a habit which a friend of mine once described as barbaric--and slowly turn counter-clockwise to rinse off.

Anyway, as I finished rinsing out the last of the Pert Plus in my hair that morning, I asked myself if everyone was like me--a slave to their shower routine? And if they were, I wondered if their habits were similar to mine?

Now, for many of you, this may seem like a relatively insignificant--maybe even stupid--thing to be concerned with, but the more I thought about it, the more I needed some answers--some closure. Then, to make matters even worse, when I stepped out of the bathtub and grabbed my towel, I immediately realized that I also have a very complicated toweling-off procedure.

As a kind of unscientific test, I decided to try to alter my toweling-off technique by attempting to wipe down the lower half of my body first, but found it almost impossible to do. It was as if my arms and shoulders were crying out, "Hey, you idiot, stop that! You have to get me dry first, remember?"

"Mary!" I yelled to my wife, "could you please come in here for a minute?"

"What is it?" she asked me when she finally stuck her head into the bathroom.

"I was just wondering, do you happen to have a little shower and toweling-off routine that you always follow?"

"What in the world are you talking about now?"

Folsom High edges varsity and j.v. River City squads

By Chuck Robinson

Last Friday night, the River City High School varsity mens basketball team traveled to Folsom and lost 53 to 67.

River City got off to a slow start and was trailing by 11 points before they could score a basket and came back to trail 11 to 16 at the end of the first quarter.

At half time they were behind by only 2 points 27 to 29. In the third quarter, River City took the lead but couldn't hold on. The leading scorer was Carlos Aguilar, with 15 points, 4 rebounds, 2 assists, 3 three-pointers; Zac Salvo, 14 points, 5 rebounds, 3 assists, 1 three-pointer; Mark Munsinger, 9 points, 5 rebounds; Bruce Sweeten, 6 points, 2 three-pointers; Anesh Singh, 5 points, 1 three-pointer; Jaimes Timas, 2 points, 3 rebounds; and George Rocha, 2 points. River City's record going into league play Tuesday was 6-6. They won the championship in the Jackson Tournament, fourth place in the Del Oro Tournament, and took second place in the Folsom Tournament, losing to Folsom by 1 point.

J.V.'s Lose to Folsom

The leading scorer was Andrew Odor, with 13 opints, 8 rebounds, 1 three-pointer; Donny Timas, 8 points, 3 rebounds; Freeman Keophet, 6 points, 2 rebounds; Steven Hawkinson, 6 points, 5 rebounds; and Brian Sidhu, 2 points, 6 rebounds. The junior varsity's record is now 4-5.

On Thursday, River City will travel to Lindhurst; they travel to Marysville on Tuesday, January 10. Game times are 5:30 and 7 p.m. The boys will play during the first half on Tuesdays and Thursdays and the girls will play Wednesdays and Fridays; in the second half they will switch, and the girls will play Tuesdays and Thursdays and the boys will play Wednesdays and Fridays.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

Next Saturday, "Da Bears" invade Candlestick Park at 1 p.m. The Bears upset Minnesota 35-18 in the NFC wildcard game.

The 49ers are 16-point favorites and will feature the return of ex-Bears defensive lineman Richard Dent. Dent hasn't played since tearing two ligaments in his right knee on Sept. 11 in Kansas City. Look for Deion Sanders to return kickoffs and punts for the Niners. As the Niners prepare to play "Da Bears," who were the lowest seeded team in the NFC playoffs, they must stay focused to win.

49ers 31 - Da Bears 10.

Dallas will be hard to beat at home next Sunday, but the Packers could pull off an upset. Take the 10 points!

Dallas 28 - Green Bay 24.

In the AFC playoffs, the Steelers will be at home Saturday against the Browns. Pittsburgh is favored by 3 1/2 points. I still believe the Steelers' defense is the best in the NFL, and that they will play the 49ers on Jan. 29 in Miami, with both teams playing for their fifth Super Bowl ring.

Pittsburgh 19, Cleveland 14.

San Diego will host the last playoff game of the week on Sunday, with Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins looking for an upset.

Miami 27 - San Diego 24 in overtime!

See ya next week!!

she asked with surprise.

"You know -- do you wash and dry everything in the same exact order when you take a shower?"

She shook her head as she often does when I ask her what I consider to be a profound question and said, "That's a little personal, don't you think?"

"I don't really want to know a lot of the specifics," I assured her. "It's just that I've suddenly realized that we may all be slaves to these silly little showering and toweling-off routines we've developed over the years."

"Well," she said reluctantly, "if you must know, I do find it impossible to leave the bathroom after I shower until I've done four specific things -- roll on my deodorant, splash on some cologne, rinse my mouth out with mouthwash and put some baby powder on my feet."

"Really?" I said, smiling.

"And what's so funny about that?" she asked.

"So, then you do have a very specific routine that you always follow?"

"Of course I do--and I'm sure everyone else does, too--but I would be very surprised if men and women have similar routines."

"Really?" I asked with interest. "And why is that?"

"Because of all the shaving women have to do."

"Shaving, huh?" I asked with even more interest, having not weighed that factor into the equation at all.

Later that evening, in an attempt to do some more research on the subject, I called a trusted friend who often gives me advice on column topics and asked him if he has a shower routine he would like to share with West Sacramento. "Thanks anyway," he said without much courage, "but anything that goes on while I'm taking a shower is strictly between me and my rubber duckie."

As a last resort, I decided to ask my three oldest kids if any of them had already developed a shower routine.

"I don't know why," said Ty, "but I always have to wash my hair last."

"I didn't know you actually shampooed that mop of yours," said Carrie with a big grin.

"At least I'm not going bald, Kojak," Ty shot back at his older sister.

"Come on you guys," I said, separating them, "I just want to know about your shower routines."

"Well," said Carrie, still glaring at her brother, "I'm just the opposite. I always do my hair first."

"Why is that?" I asked.

"Because that way I can wash everything else while I'm waiting for the conditioner I use to work its way into my hair."

"And what about you, Paul?" I asked my obviously disinterested middle-son, who is only thirteen and not yet fully committed to such bothersome rights-of-passage as bathing regularly.

"Well," he said with a straight face, "I think you better ask me about showers in a few years -- you know -- after I've taken one."

Dec. 29, 4:15 p.m.

An officer working undercover against prostitution offered a 30-year old female pedestrian a ride near Sycamore and West Capitol. She accepted the ride, and agreed to perform two sex acts with the driver for $50. Other officers pulled the vehicle over and arrested the woman. At least three other arrests were similarly made the same day (the going rate per sex act was about $20).

Dec. 30, 5:20 p.m.

An off-duty Tulare County sheriff's deputy reported possible narcotics sales from a vehicle parked at Todhunter and Carrie St. Officers found a 37-year old man and 32-year old woman standing by a van. While searching the man, the officer saw the woman throw a handful of clear plastic baggies -- commonly used to package drugs -- onto the ground. He also found a small quantity of marijuana and a marijuana pipe. The pair were arrested.

Jan. 1, 12:10 a.m.

(First police call of the new year). A Maple St. man said his upstairs neighbors had an excessively loud stereo and excessively stomped on their floor, and when he banged on the ceiling, they turned up the volume.

Jan. 1, 4 a.m.

A 21-year old woman was arrested after a minor in her vehicle was seen brandishing a weapon. A security guard at a Riverpoint Dr. complex located the weapon, which was unloaded. Police found a baggie of methamphetamine. The woman was booked.

Jan. 1, 1 a.m. to 6 a.m.

At least four callers reported shots heard in the vicinities of Jasmine, Hardy, Evergreen and Casselman. A police detective later commented that some of the reports may have been due to New Year's fireworks (illegal) or to celebrators firing guns in the air (illegal and very dangerous).

Jan. 1, 8:23 p.m.

A Maple St. woman reported that her 14-year old daughter was raped and the suspect was a family friend.

Jan. 2, 12:06 a.m.

A Cummins Way woman was "almost hysterical" about ongoing telephone harassment, possibly from a neighbor.

Jan. 2, 3:25 a.m.

A woman living near Jefferson and Higgins Rd. awoke to the sound of her pickup truck's engine starting, and called the police, who found it southbound on Jefferson. An officer pulled the truck over at gunpoint and arrested the driver. They found the pickup's steering column had been broken and the suspect, an 18-year old West Sacramento man, was in possession of a large screwdriver and a quantity of suspected methamphetamine.

Jan. 2, 5:47 a.m.

Two men tried to leave a West Capitol Ave. restaurant without paying, but were detained by management and were growing "irate." They said they did not have the money to pay. Police required one to stay while the other went to get the money. A half hour later, when the second did not return, they gave the remaining man a citation and released him.

Jan. 2, 11:15 p.m.

A Haverhill St. woman reported her 87-year old mother had left for a walk two hours ago and had not returned. Neighbors later found the woman on West Capitol Ave., and returned her home.

Jan. 2, 10:57 p.m.

A security guard at a local supermarket reported that unknown people in a utility vehicle drove by and fired a dart at him from a blowgun. He was not injured.

Chairman of supes on radio

Board of Supervisors chairman, Michael McGowan, will be bringing an update of the many activities that reflect the working of the Yolo County Supervisors. The weekly Chamber of Commerce radio show, Kaleidoscope, will be aired today on Radio KJAY -- 1430 AM, between 12:05 and 1 p.m. This week's host will be Steve Roberts, executive director of the Chamber. The show is broadcast live from Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza.

Organizations and individuals wishing to participate on the show to discuss topics of local interest are encouraged to contact the Chamber at 371-7042. Included in the program is a local community calendar.

Sponsors of the radio show are Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza and the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

Next week on January 11, Mike Hyett, president of the Washington Little League, along with Teresa Blackmer, will be the featured guests on Kaleidoscope, with updates regarding the events of the league.

Museum seeks wooden waterfowl

The Yolo County Historical Museum is seeking examples of duck decoys that have been carved by local residents for an exhibit, Wildfowl Decoys, opening January 25. If you have decoys carved by your forefather or by you that you wish to loan for the exhibit, please call the museum at 666-1045 before January 10. Photographs of early day Yolo County hunting scenes are also sought.

The Wildfowl Decoys exhibit will include over 60 decoys from Yolo, Sacramento and Solano Counties, representing a variety of time periods, materials, and artisans. Decoys from the museum's permanent collection, as well as those loaned by local private collectors and hunters will be included. Period photographs and hunting related objects will compliment the exhibit.

During the two month exhibit, Dr. Fred Hanson, collector and co-author with Michael R. Miller of the book Wildfowl Decoys of the Pacific Coast, will give a talk about decoys. Appraisal consultations will be scheduled with well-known collector, Kenneth Kimble, and Dr. Hanson.. Dates for these events will be announced next month.

The museum is located at 512 Gibson Road in Woodland. Visiting hours are Mondays and Tuesdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays between 12 noon and 4 p.m. For more information, call director Monika Stengert at 666-1045.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Delays in the mail and computer error

It is fashionable to criticize government, and there's often much to criticize in government. But when something is done right by the public sector (like that mean pothole on Jefferson Blvd. near Linden Road getting fixed), that, too, should be mentioned.

One frequent target of the American public is the post office. It's always good for a laugh among friends, strangers and television shows to sneer at the postal service's delivery service.

But how often do we actually receive bad mail service? Rarely is an envelope mailed which does not find its recipient in a few days, and rarely is an expected piece of mail sent astray.

Slow mail delivery is sort of like "computer error." Usually, we use the "slow mail service" as a cover-up for forgetting to mail something on time, or for addressing it improperly -- just like we blame a paperwork mistake on computer error by reflex. Usually, a "computer error" is just a human error performed within six feet of a computer that doesn't have an alibi.

Of course, the fact that the postal service does a good job 99 percent of the time doesn't make the new 32 cent stamp go down any easier. . .

Someone phoned a talk show a couple of weeks ago when scientist Carl Sagan (the "bill-yuns and bill-yuns" guy) was a guest. The caller pointed out to Carl that humans always look at previous generations and are aghast at how primitive and unjust their predecessors were.

How could the Romans have thrown Christians to the lions? How could the Greeks, the Europeans or the Americans have tolerated slavery? How could wartime America put Japanese-Americans into concentration camps because their parents or grandparents were born in the wrong place? How could they not see the injustice?

The caller then asked Sagan what the scientist predicted future generations would find unjust or primitive about America in the '90s. And Sagan replied that, although future generations would surely be as critical of us as we are of those before us, it is impossible to guess what they would view as our shortcomings.

There's a local woman who pushes all her belongings in a cart who may offer one clue.

Every time it rains, she enters a West Sacramento public building and makes her bed on the hard floor, with her face near her cart, guarding it while she sleeps. The lights stay on all night and people stroll past. She is quiet, and even while awake, shuns eye contact.

Sometime this winter, you can bet she will be asked to move on, and she will have to find someplace a fraction less safe and a fraction less comfortable to come in out of the rain.

Letters to the Editor

Farewell

The East Yolo Seniors Club has lost one of its most loving and dedicated members with the passing of Virginia Ortiz.

Her hope was that the club would open the doors to the location of a permanent Senior Center. Although she didn't live to see her dream come true, she did know that when we did get a senior building there would be a quilt room in her name. For on her 90th birthday, the E.Y. Seniors Club presented her with a $5,000 CD certificate for a quilt room in the future senior building in her name.

Since then, many people have approached me saying they will contribute money to the quilt room in her name.

So Virginia, somehow you will know it will be one of the best quilt rooms maybe in the whole state of California. With all of that love and money, it would have to be.

All of your friends and family, and their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren will get to see it and be so proud of you as we all are.

You were someone we all looked up to and respected for your true caring and love for others. To me, you were a true friend and I loved you like a sister and shall miss you greatly. You were a great lady. The kind you meet once in a lifetime. With your passing, it is truly the end of an era.

Transit

As per several telecons with various CalTrans staff, below are some suggestions for updates/improvements:

1) Jefferson Blvd. and Park Blvd. in West Sacramento at west base of Pioneer Bridge: this intersection across from the capitol city has an "F" rating by CalTrans staff due to bad congestion during peak hours. If you took time for food at the Superb Burger there, you would experience people coming in and asking, "How do we get to I-5 from here?" So not only do we need "To I-5" signs with arrows there, but why not similar signs for U.S. 50 from West Sacramento surface streets?

2) Downtown Sacramento on 5th Street northbound as one approaches J Street: as one looks up to see both right lanes to H Street closed, one also notices the big sign displaying "West Sacramento/To I-5 South" (with arrow) for both left lanes. Almost inconspicuously is a shorter, faded sign telling us that Sacramento Metro Airport is "also in that direction," albeit to the north! But the larger, more visible signs imply that one cannot access I-5 north via 5th Street north of J Street. So why not eliminate the confusion and simply cover over the "south" part of the sign? Or consolidate the 2 signs so that "I-5 north" and "I-5 south" is displayed. Those least familiar are least likely to proceed in the prescribed manner; hence, they are more prone to cause accidents.

3) On Watt Ave. southbound after one crosses over I-80, the approach/turnoff for I-80 east/Reno has a very sharp clockwise turn -- just like the exit for La Riveria Drive about 3 miles south which has a "slow to 20 mph" sign with curve and arrow -- but the I-80 east exit has no such sign!

4) Yuba City -- state highways 99 and 20 intersection -- one year ago there were no signs on Highway 99 telling one that Highway 20 was to one's left/right before and at said intersection (and slow down, etc.). Hope that "10th Street Bridge -- Colusa Highway" crossing of Highway 99 has its proper signs soon, if not already. (And how about those 6/h signs on Howe Ave. with the lights inside the signs?)

5) I-5's multi-vehicle collisions caused by drivers not slowing down for the fog (adequately): my friend and I were discussing last week's incidents west of Sac Metro Airport and he claimed our former mayor had inquired as to why flashing "caution/stop lights" were not warranted on both sides of the Yolo Causeway-type areas where fog tends to form more heavily.

In light of last night's (12/28/94) even worse pile-ups on I-5 south of Bakersfield, we must

Attention WEST SACRAMENTO Kids!

West Sacramento kids between the ages of 5 and 12, can attend a free after-school program sponsored by the City's Parks and Community Services Department. Here they can enjoy their favorite friends and activities in a safe, supervised environment. Incredibly, this program is free, thanks to the full support of our community.

The after-school programs provide fun, structured activities, like building marshmallow towers or racing in gunny sacks, along with free time for the kids to play games with their friends or explore what interests them — drawing, building, reading, and more. A typical day includes active games, a craft, a nutritious snack, free game time, an educational activity, and an outdoor recreation period. The kids also get to go on a special field trip each month, such as roller skating or to the zoo. There also are movie days, complete with popcorn. The focus is on recreation, but kids can get help with their homework during the free periods.

Each month, the programs are centered around a new theme. Upcoming themes include Native Americans, astronomy, and recycling. December was focused on winter celebrations and cultural awareness. November was "Super-Safe Smart Kids" month, and included a visit from West Sacramento firefighters and a field trip to Safetyville. Elkhorn, Westfield, and Westmore Oaks elementary schools offer the After-School Adventure during the first three weeks of every month, Monday through Friday. Parents don't have to worry about how their children will get from school to the after-school program because it takes place in the school cafeteria right after school and ends at 5:30 p.m. each day. The program is canceled on school holidays and during the months of September, December, and April.

There are also two neighborhood programs, the Pine-Square Outreach Program ("P.O.P.") at 827 Pine Street, Apartment #24, and the Sandalwood Neighborhood Program ("S.N.A.P") at the Sandalwood recreation room. These programs are essentially the same as the school-based programs, but are located in the neighborhoods because these children go to school far from their homes. P.O.P. is available on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 3:30 to 5 p.m., and Saturdays from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. S.N.A.P. is available on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Under the direction of Recreation Supervisor Connie Leek, the programs are supervised by mature well-trained Recreation Leaders and Recreation Aides, who have solid experience working with kids. The staff members are trained in first aid and CPR, and have at least two years of experience working with kids.

Volunteers and donations for the after-school programs are always appreciated. Volunteers are needed to help supervise the kids, especially on field trips or special events. High school and college students, as well as adults, are welcome. Donations of books, games, arts and crafts supplies and nutritious snacks are always appreciated.

For more information about participating or volunteering in these wonderful after-school programs, please call the Department of Parks and Community Services, 373-5860.

Local Scene

Landscape exhibit

The West Sacramento Art Guild presents "Landscapes," an exhibit by photographer Bob Sweatt, on display through the month of January. The public is invited to attend a reception for the artist on Saturday, January 7, between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Arthur F. Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. For more information, please call 371-9274.

Books needed

Donations are needed for the next Friends of the Library booksale. The sale is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, January 28 and 29, in the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library community room.

Hardback and paperback books are accepted year-round at the library during regular business hours. Donors can take the books to the circulation desk or ring the buzzer at the rear delivery door on the east side of the building for assistance with large quantities.

Proceeds from the sale and other fundraisers like the magazine sale table help fund the "extras" at the library, such as videos, children's programs, leased bestsellers, and soon, audio-books. Please call 371-5612 for library hours and upcoming events.

Tax forms

It's tax-time again! And the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library will again be a source for state and federal income tax forms and booklets starting the 2nd week of January. There will be a selection of commonly used forms in the lobby as well as forms that can be photocopied from a master set in binders on a table next to the photocopier. The cost for copies is $.10 per page. As always, the library staff cannot answer tax questions or give advice about the selection or completion of the forms. The library is located at 1212 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. For hours, please call 371-5612.

Ministry brown bag

Joy Christian Ministries, located at 320 West Capitol (on the bridge end), is our place for meeting for the Thursday, January 12 brown bag luncheon of the West Sacramento Ecumenical Ministry Association. Our meeting time is 12:00 - 1:00 p.m. Religious leaders are invited to attend, as we seek to minister together in our community. The contact person is J.C. Meyers, who can be reached at 375-0066.

wonder, "What can we do to reduce these incidents?" Thinking out loud, please consider:

a) Treat fogged highways like flooded highways. Use the ol' detour methods. It may slow some folks down and cause some folks to reschedule, but savings lives should be worth it!

b) More roadside rests "on both sides of where fog is most likely to form." Whatever we can do to minimize these hazards would seem like a step in the right direction. Good luck on devising a method for allowing motorists to reverse themselves and "head back where they came from without making an illegal u-turn and thus being the slow driver in the passing lane..." would such a formula include signs toward the end of the heavy fog area, noting "slow down/left lane may be closed ahead." This would seem to facilitate safe turnarounds and use of alternate routes. (But do we yet know most of the fog settles?)

c) Years ago, most big rig truck drivers were paid hourly. Today, most are paid "by the job" and are buying or won their own tractor and there seems to be a greater tendency to driver longer hours between sleep; hence, the greater the chance of the driver falling asleep at the wheel, including in the fog...; hence, the greater the need for more roadside rests, huh?

Finally, maybe the new state law requiring forfeiture of one's vehicle as (part of) the penalty for driving without a license will result in safer streets...some 1 million drivers affected. How many of that million (and their passengers) will now take public transit? Let's hope that most will?

conditions and mitigation measures and the adoption of previous the previous Southport Industrial Park zone text," said Harry Gibson, a senior planner with the West Sacramento Community Development Department. These conditions -- already deliberated by the city -- cover issues relating to the construction and operations of the future plant.

The agreement will also include provisions for negotiating a water supply for the plant, which will require six million gallons per day at buildout (the city, at its buildout, will require a total of 20-30 million gallons per day).

But perhaps foremost on the minds of both city officials and the plant's backers is the sewage issue.

Much of the water which enters the plant will leave in the form of sewage, and the development agreement will require some future agreement with the city to help handle this sewage.

Among the options being pursued by West Sacramento are the construction of a new sewage plant (partly funded by the paper plant developers) or paying Sacramento County to treat West Sacramento sewage at a regional facility.

"We don't have it nailed down yet," said Gibson. "Before (the paper plant) discharges anything, it will have to be nailed."

The paper plant is proposed by a partnership of a Canadian firm with lumber interests, MacMillan Bloedel, Ltd., and the German Haindl Papier company.

West Sacramento will have to get state approval for its new sewage plan. To that end, the city has hired a Davis firm to test samples from a Haindl paper recycling plant in Germany to determine exactly what will be in the West Sacramento paper plant's waste stream.

The plant has already faced and settled one lawsuit over its local environmental impact, and one of its adversaries, the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign, has announced that it is awaiting the results of the new test results with great interests, fearing that the plant will further degrade the Sacramento River.

The Jan. 11 city council meeting will include a public hearing. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the city council chambers 2101 Stone Blvd.

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors has announced the following vacancies on Yolo County advisory boards, commissions and committees:

Adult Day Health Special Advisory Board; Commission on Aging; Community Action Board; Developmental Disabilities Committee; Emergency Medical Care Committee; Health Council; Historical Adivsory Committee; Local Mental Health Board; Maternal, Child & Adolescent Health Advisory Committee; Salud Clinic Advisory Board; Madison Service District; Madison Fire District; West Plainfield Fire District; and Port of Sacramento.

"The development will be primarily residential," said Roberts, with an overall average of six units per acre -- around typical for a suburban subdivision. "They have already designed their subdivision to generally maintain the (Southport Framework Plan) street layout, and to have 'through-block' trails so people can walk from one main street to another main street."

If commercial or public buildings were included in the subdivision, they might be required by the Southport Framework Plan to follow a consistent theme in their use of materials and design. But neither the Framework Plan nor the Gateway design call for commercial or public buildings within the Gateway Project.

"There will be a mini-park site of about 2.5 acres in the middle of the project," said Roberts.

The project is one of many planned for the Southport area, but won't be completed until sometime after a new bridge access is built to serve the southern half of West Sacramento over the barge canal.

"The current construction schedule (for the planned new bridge) is to begin in late 1995 and finish in late 1996," said Mayor Cindy Tuttle.

This deal occurred during the famous Culbertson-Lenz match in 1931.

Josephine Culbertson opened one diamond and Oswald Jacoby made a weak jump overcall of two hearts. Ely Culbertson bid three spades and Sidney Lenz passed. Mrs. Culbertson now bid three notrump. This may have been the right bid in those days, but by modern standards, four diamonds would surely be regarded as preferable.

Hands with 6-4-2-1 distribution don't lend themselves well to notrump play, so to that extent three notrump was misleading. Furthermore, three notrump did not express the slam possibilities suggested by a hand with 17 high-card points facing a jump-shift.

However, the Culbertsons got to six diamonds anyway. It was an unsound contract, of course, but it had a good chance of succeeding — depending on the opening lead.

Jacoby had no clear-cut lead. The Culbertsons had bid all four suits, and where to attack was by no means obvious. It seemed to him there was a good chance that North had the A-Q of spades for his three spade bid, and that a later finesse would trap his king.

So Jacoby decided to put Mrs. Culbertson under immediate pressure by leading the six of spades. He thought she might read the lead as a singleton and go up with the ace.

Jacoby's plan succeeded beyond his wildest dreams. Lenz won tne trick with the ace and returned a spade, thus quickly nipping the slam in the bud. Had Jacoby led any other suit, Mrs. Culbertson would have scored all 13 tricks!
